THE date of the foundation of Arbroath is of some interest in Church and public history. Thomas à Becket, the high church Archbishop, was slain at the altar of his own church of Canterbury, on the 29th of December 1170. Two years afterwards, in 1173, he was canonized; and within five years of his canonization, and not more than seven from the period of his death, in the year 1178,¹ William King of Scotland had founded, endowed, and dedicated to Saint Thomas the Martyr, the Abbey of Arbroath.

William was no admirer of the Archbishop's principles of Church independence. His whole policy was opposed to them. A contemporary Churchman accuses him of imitating the Norman tyranny in controlling the disposal of Church preferment,² and

² The passage is very curious—vir tantus et tam laudabilis in multis, totam gloriam suam ab ineunte ætate usque in senium, (proh dolor!) unica macula decoloravit. Per totam enim terræ suæ totius ampli- tudinem, in cathedralibus ecclesiis cunctis, nullas omnino nisi ad nutum ipsius, more tyrannico fieri permisit electiones; enormes quidem Normanniæ tyrannidis per Angliam abusiones, nimis in hoc expresse sequens.—Girald. Camb. in Anglia Christiana.

he did not always testify great respect for the Pope. It has been suggested that William was personally acquainted with Becket in his early life, "when there was little probability of his ever becoming a confessor, martyr, and saint."¹ Was this the cause, or was it the natural propensity to extol him who, living and dead, had humbled the Crown of England, that led William to take Saint Thomas as his patron saint, and to entreat his intercession when he was in greatest trouble?² Or may we consider the dedication of his new Abbey, and his invocation of the martyr of Canterbury, as nothing more than signs of the rapid spreading of the veneration for the new saint of the high church party, from which his old opponent himself was not exempt?³

The Abbey was founded for Tyronensian monks brought from the monastery of Kelso, in 1178.⁴

1. Reginald, a monk of Kelso, was the first Abbot of Arbroath.⁵ In 1178, the Abbot and Convent of Kelso quitclaimed from all subjection and obedience, Reginald elected to be Abbot of the church of St. Thomas in Scotland at Arbroath; declaring

² William frequently invoked the help of Saint

Thomas as he was led to the place of his captivity at Richmond. (Fordun, viii. cap. xxii.)

³ The story of King Henry's penance at the tomb of Becket, coinciding exactly with the capture of his enemy William at Alnwick, (which Lord Hailes criticises too minutely,) serves at least to show the popular feeling, and perhaps Henry's willingness to take advantage of it. The miraculous coincidence was certainly believed universally in that age. (Chron. Mailr. Fordun. Gervase. Mat. Paris, &c.)

⁴ No. 2, which bears the date of 1178, and seems to record (at the time) the benediction of the first Abbot.

that notwithstanding monks had been taken from Kelso for the house of Arbroath, the Abbot of Kelso should never claim any authority over the Abbot or Convent of the church of St. Thomas. Wherefore, said they, let mutual charity, friendship and prayers, have place between the houses, but no dominion or power. King William was present at that grant, along with Mathew Bishop of Aberdeen, who consecrated the Abbot, the See of St. Andrews being vacant.¹ Abbot Reginald died the same year.

2. Henry, a monk of Kelso, was the next Abbot. In 1179, the same Abbot of Kelso granted in his favour a renunciation of all authority over his house in similar terms with that granted to Abbot Reginald.² Henry was Abbot till 1201, or later.³

3. Gilbert is the next Abbot that has occurred. He is found in charters before 1214,⁴ and between 1220-25.⁵ Gilbert is mentioned in a charter of Abbot Ralph his successor, as having perambulated certain lands of Kenny, in the shire of Kingoldrum.⁶

4. Ralph (Radulphus de Lamley) was Abbot on 30th March 1226. In 1233, on the 8th of the Ides of March, the Abbey Church was dedicated,⁷ having been somewhat more than half a century in building. Abbot Ralph became Bishop of Aberdeen in 1239, when he probably resigned the Abbacy.

5. Adam was probably the next Abbot. In 1242, Abbot Adam granted the lands of Conveth and others to John Wischard in feu-farm.¹ He was Abbot in 1245.²

6. Walter was Abbot of Arbroath in 1252,³ and in 1256.⁴

7. Robert was Abbot in December 1261. In 1267 his monks expelled him from the convent, (pudenter ejecerunt), and he appealed to Rome, but no more is known of his history.⁵

8. Sabinus, Abbot of Arbroath, is witness to the foundation-charter of Maison Dieu at Brechin, by William de Brechin, in or before 1267, in which year, 4th July, he grants "liberum introitum," to Mesyndew.⁶

9. John was Abbot of Arbroath on the feast of the Assumption, 1268.⁷

10. The next Abbot was William, who occurs very frequently from 1276 to 1288.⁸

11. Henry is the name of the Abbot of Arbroath at the time of the homages to Edward in 1292, 1296.

12. Nicholas occurs as Abbot of Arbroath, on Saturday next before the feast of St. Clement the martyr, 1299.⁹

13. John was Abbot on the feast of St. Stephen the protomartyr, 1303.¹⁰ He resigned, or was removed from his office, (cessit et per episcopum absolutus fuit ab officio), on the feast of All Saints, 1309.¹¹

14. His successor was Bernard de Linton, who was Chancellor of Scotland during almost all the reign of Robert the Bruce. He seems to have been appointed to the Abbacy in 1311, when he had been Chancellor for some years. He continued Abbot and Chancellor till 1328, when, on the vigil of St. Philip and St. James, 30th April, being elected to the See of Sodor, a pension was assigned to him out of his Abbacy; and the Bishop and others assigning it, narrate that he had been Abbot for seventeen years.¹

15. Geoffry immediately succeeded in the Abbacy. He granted a charter on March 19, 1328,² and he was Abbot for some time after the period at which the present volume of the writs of the Abbey closes.

The King, its founder, was the great benefactor of the Abbey. But it is astonishing with what rapidity estates in land, churches and tithes were heaped upon the new foundation, by the magnates and barons of Angus and the North. It is not uninteresting to note the acquisitions of a single reign.

King William himself bestowed on the monks serving God and Saint Thomas the martyr at Aberbrothoc, the territory of Athyn or Ethie, and Achinglas, the shires of Dunechtyn and Kingoldrum; a net's fishing in Tay, called Stok, and one in the North Esk; a salt-work in the Carse of Stirling; the ferry-boat of Montrose, with its land; the custody of "the Brecbennach," with the lands of Forglen attached to that office; a plough of land in Monethen or Mondyne on the Bervy; a toft in each of the King's burghs and

During William's reign, the new Abbey was endowed by the great Earls of Angus, with the churches of Monifod or Monifieth, Muraus, Kerimore, and Stradectomy Comititis, now called Mains,¹

and the same family bestowed upon it lands called Portincraig, a name which though now appropriated to the head-land on the Fife side of the ferry, must, from the description and boundaries, have been applied to what is now known as Broughty and its adjacent lands.¹ These grants afford charter evidence of five generations of this family: (1.) Earl Gillebride (apparently before the foundation of Arbroath) had made a donation of the land of Portincraig, with the fishing along its shores, for founding an hospital at Portincraig. (2.) Earl Gillechrist, his son, appropriated that land to the new Abbey, and his charter was successively ratified by his son, (3.) Earl Duncan, his grandson, (4.) Earl Malcolm, and by (5.) Maud, Countess of Angus, in her own right.²

By gift of Marjory Countess of Buchan, the monks had the church of Turfred or Turref; from Ralf le Naym, the church of Inverugy; from Roger Bishop of St. Andrews, the church of Aberhelot or Arbirlot.

The De Berkeleys granted to the convent the church of Inverkelidor or Inverkeelor, which was confirmed by Ingelram de Balliol, who married the daughter of Walter de Berkeley; and the lands of Balfeith or Belphe, with a description and bounding most instructive for the antiquities of Angus and Mearns.³

Fadwerth, and Cormac of Nug, and other good men of our lord the King, of Angus and of Moerns. This jury of Celtic gentlemen of the low country of Angus and Mearns, contrasts notably with the lists of burgesses of Dundee and Aberdeen, of Norman or Saxon names and Teutonic lineage, occurring about the same time. (Nos. 85, 136, &c.) The fixing of the boundaries at so early a period, (the very beginning of the 13th century,)

By the gift of Thomas de Lundyn the Durward, (Ostiarius Regis,) the monks obtained the church of Kinerny; and the bank of forest-land, lying at the junction of the Dee and Canny, called in the days of William the Lion “nemus de Trostauch,” and which, now again under wood, has been known for many years to the Deeside people as “the Wood of Trustach.”¹

Robert de Lundres, the bastard son of King William, bestowed on the Abbey the church of Ruthven.² From the Malherbes it received two oxgates in Rossy, and a rent of two shillings from the land of Balenaus or Balnaves in Kinnell.³ From the Fitz-Bernards, the forefathers of Sibald of Kair, the little green cove or “Rath” of Katernyn or Katerlin,⁴ on the coast of Mearns; from the de Montforts, Glaskeler,⁵ adjoining it; from the family who adopted Abbot or Abbe for their surname, a right of making and using charcoal from their wood of Edale or Edzell;⁶ from the Fitz-Thancards, the lands between Ethkar and Calledouer, and the davoch of Ballegillegrand in Bolshon, in the parish of Kinnell;⁷ from the Bishops of Brechin, small possessions in Stracatherach;⁸ from the St. Michaels, the lands of Mundurnach, probably Mundurno on the Don, a little way north of Aberdeen;⁹ from Earl David, the brother is of interest to the local antiquary; and the minute provisions of peatary and pasture—the grazing of 100 beasts with their followers, and as many swine and as many brood mares as the monks chose, with a right of “shealing” from Pasch to the feast of All-Hallows, either in Tubertach, or in Crospath, or in Glenfarkar, afford glimpses of the ancient occupation of the district which are not to be found elsewhere.

of King Malcolm and King William, a plough of land in Kinalchmund or Kinethmont, in his lordship of Garioch, measured and arable;¹ a mark of silver yearly from Fergus Earl of Buchan;² a half mark from the family of the great Earls of Stratherne, out of the fishing of Ur on the Tay, above Perth;³ from Richard de Frivill, a plough of land of Ballekelefan; and by grants from him, from Philip de Melvil, and his father-in-law Walter Sibald, and from King William himself, a small territory about Mone-then, or Mondyne on the Bervy, and Kare.

In recording the acquisition of those ample possessions, and affording the first record of property over wide districts, the Registers of Arbroath furnish incidentally some information of interest to those who feel none in the ancient religious foundation, or in the history of the early inhabitants and the local history of the soil. On other subjects of more general interest it opens dim lights, or suggests subjects for speculation, though too often the historical inquirer must still rest satisfied with a conjectural result.

It may be allowed simply to indicate a few of the subjects, whether of public and historical interest, or of a more local nature, which are illustrated by the deeds comprised in the present volume.

The charters connected with the Abbey's acquisition of the church of Abernethy might furnish subject for abundant discussion to the zealous antiquary. The church is granted by King William; and at the same time, Laurence, son of Orm of Abernethy, while he quitclaims all his right in the advowson of the church, with its dependent chapels of Dron, Dunbulg, and Errol, and with the lands of Belach and Petinlouer, grants to the Abbey of Arbroath the half of the tithes of the property of himself and his heirs, (provenientium ex propria pecunia mea et heredum meorum,) the other half of which belongs to the Culdees of Abernethy, and the whole tithes of the territory of Abernethy, except those which belong to the church of Flisk and Culter, and except the tithes of his lordship of Abernethy, (de dominio meo de Abernethy,) which the Culdees have always possessed, namely, those of Mugdrum, Kerpul, Balehyrewell, Ballecolly, and Invernethy, be-east of the burn. In confirming this gift, evidently the same day and place at which it was made, King William uses the same words, with this exception, that he styles the granter "Abbot of Abernethy."¹ Here, therefore, we have Laurence the son of Orm, Abbot of Abernethy, an ancient house of Culdees, lord also of the lordship or manor of Abernethy, and not only granting tithes out of his own property there, but asserting it to be the inheritance of him and his heirs.

These charter evidences help out the obscure indications in our older chroniclers, of a race of Church nobles, hereditary heads of religious houses, and taking rank among the highest of lay magnates. When we read that the ancient dynasty of our kings (before the wars of the Succession) sprang from the marriage of Bethoc, a daughter of Malcolm II. with Crinan, Abbot of the

Columbite family of Dunkeld—that Ethelred, a son of Malcolm Canmore, Abbot of Dunkeld, was also Earl of Fife, our best historians have evaded the embarrassment by questioning the authority of the chronicler;¹ and it has not hitherto been suspected that there were proofs of another house of Culdees, even surviving Saint David's Church revolution, having its hereditary abbot, and styling himself and acting, as Lord of the Abbey territory.

The evidence, indeed, is narrow, and may not be deemed satisfactory, and this is not the place for rearing an argument upon it. It raises, at least, an interesting speculation both for Scotland and Ireland; and independently of it, the historical inquirer of both countries will be pleased to meet the frequent notices of the old Culdees both of Abernethy and of Brechin, which occur in this Register.

The Register of Arbroath has preserved the most ancient evidence of the form of judicial procedure, as recorded in rolls of the King's Court, the proceedings themselves being founded upon the old laws of King David,—“assisa regis David . . . usitata et probata in regno Scotiae usque ad illum diem.”²

In a discussion regarding the service due to the Abbey for the land of Innerpefir, we have some light thrown upon the nature of the military service stipulated in ancient Scotch charters, and incidental mention of an expedition of Alexander II. into the western Highlands in 1248, not elsewhere commemorated, with the attendance of those bound to do military service.³

Connected with this subject, we turn with much interest to the indications of an early “extent” of land, or a measure or valuation, having reference to public burdens. Some deeds would seem to show a definite forinsec service, and a fixed amount of aid due from lands, long before the period which is generally assigned for the introduction of the old extent. The very ancient denominations of land, from its value—librata, nummata, denariata terræ, plainly point at a valuation for some public purpose; but here there are indications that the divisions into davachs, which have hitherto been taken for mere agricultural measures of arable land, have also reference to an early extent, expressed in measure of land, not in money value;¹ and these occur in 1234, without reference to any recent measure of extent or taxation.

The public statutes of 1318, recorded in this Register—the only body of general laws of the reign of Robert I.—derived additional authority and interest, from the fact that Bernard, the Abbot of Arbroath, as Chancellor of the kingdom, probably either framed them, or presided in Parliament when they were passed, and thought them of sufficient importance to have place in the Register of his Abbey, amongst deeds more nearly concerning it.²

In another document, there is notice of the Abbot of Arbroath passing to Norway on the King’s affairs, probably in connexion with the negotiations which ended in the treaty of Inverness, 1312.³

There is a singularity in the motive of the grant, by King

Robert, of the church of Kirkmacho. It is given “for the health of his soul, and of the souls of his ancestors and successors, Kings of Scotland, and especially for the souls of those whose bodies rest within the church and its cemetery”—pointing, perhaps, to Kirkmacho as a place of sepulture of the old Lords of Annandale.¹

The custody of the Brecebennach, or consecrated banner of Saint Columba, was an ancient and valuable part of the Abbey privileges. The lands of Forglen had of old been granted for its maintenance, and under it, no doubt, the vassals of the Abbey marched to war. The church of Forglen was dedicated to Saint Adomnan, the follower and historian of Saint Columba. At what period the Saint’s holy banner was associated with that territory cannot now be determined. When King William granted its custody to the Abbot of his new Monastery, the distance as well as the nature of the office—raising and following the banner in the King’s host—would evidently suggest a lay-substitute. The custody of the Brecebennach, in the beginning of the fourteenth century, was held of the Abbot, by the knightly family of Monymusk of that ilk; from whom it passed by descent to the Urrys and the Frasers, becoming vested, about the year 1420, in the Irvines of Drum.²

The meaning of the word “Abthein,” as applied to an office, has been a subject of frequent discussion and dispute among Scotch antiquaries. In this Register we have the word occurring several times, but always in reference to land. In an early charter King

William granted to Hugh de Roxburgh, the Chancellor, in life-rent, "terram abbacie de Munros," to be held of Arbroath for a reddendo of three stones of wax. There was no Abbey at Montrose, and we must look for the meaning of the grant in another direction. In the great charter of Arbroath, the King granted to it "the church of Saint Mary, of old Munros, with the land of that church, which in Scotch is called Abthen."¹ Again, early in the thirteenth century, Malcolm, Earl of Angus, granted to Nicholas, son of the priest of Kerimure and his heirs, in fee and heritage, the land of Abthein of Munifeith; and the Countess Maud, in her widowhood, confirmed that grant. There is nothing here to connect the tenure with the Abbey; but in 1310, Michael de Monifoth, the hereditary lord of the land, (dominus abbathe ejusdem,) binds himself to pay to the convent of Arbroath, six shillings and eightpence of good and lawful sterlings, for the toft and croft which he holds of them in the territory of the said abbathania, together with half a boll of mustard seed. This toft was without doubt that which the Countess Maud describes in her charter of gift to Arbroath, as "the land to the south of the church of Monifod, which the Culdees held in my father's time."²

Abthein, then, was land, the property of or connected with an Abbot or Abbacy—perhaps of a Columbite or Culdee house—but whether any other quality or condition enters into its meaning, there are too few materials yet to ascertain.

Whilst the Chartulary illustrates the genealogies of many of the great families of Angus and the North, it brings us acquainted with some names, the early history of which is of still more interest in the district.

John Abbe, the son of Malise, granted, and Morgund the son of John Abbe, confirmed to the monks, the privilege of taking coals (charcoal) in the wood of Edale.¹ Donald Abbe of Brechin, in the reign of William the Lion, granted to the monks the dauach of Ballegillegrund, and his grant is witnessed by Malbrid, Prior of the Culdees of Brechin.² Maurice Abbe of Abireloth, occurs very low down in the list of witnesses of several charters of Gilchrist, Earl of Angus. There are several occurrences in other church Registers, particularly among the charters of Coldinghame, of persons bearing this singular name, and it may not be impossible, by a comparison of these, to detect its meaning and origin.

In an early, but undated charter, we have perhaps the first record of the ancient family of Falconer. The party is William the Falconer—"Willelmus auceps"—who, no doubt, also bore sometimes the name of Hawker; for whilst his descendants have retained the former name, their dwelling (villa ejusdem Willelmi aucupis) acquired that of Haukerstun.³

to have been a bridge of stone over the North water, a very early example of a bridge over such a stream. The land was granted to the church of Marington, apparently Marykirk; and as a symbol of investiture, the Falconer offered a turf of the land upon the altar of the Church.

A person of the name of Bricius occurs in very early charters as "judex" of Angus, probably holding his office under the great Earls. In 1219, Adam was "judex" of the Earl's court. Some years later, he became "judex" of the King's court, and his brother Keraldus succeeded to his office in the court of the Earl, for in the year 1227, we find the brothers acting together, and styled respectively "judex" of Angus, and "judex" of our Lord the King. The dwelling of Keraldus received the name of "Keraldiston," now Caraldstoun; and the office of judex, becoming hereditary and taking its Scotch style of "Dempster," gave name to the family who for many generations held the lands of Caraldstoun, and performed the office of Dempster of the Parliaments of Scotland. Its functions were no doubt of a very different kind and degree from those fulfilled by the ancient Judex, and it might be interesting to trace, from these and other materials, the progress of the change.

It has already been mentioned that much of the pedigree of the ancient Earls of Angus is proved from this Register. It affords also valuable information for the genealogies of the de Berkeleys, Malherbes, de Rossys, Wischards, Middletouns, Scots, de Brechins, Melvilles, Arbuthnots, Sibbalds, Moncurs, Mohauts, and other houses of Angus and the Mearns, as well as of the Earls of Buchan, and the names of Garuiach, le Cheyne, Leslie, Feodarg, Meldrum, Durward, Walchope, Monimusk, and St. Michael, with other ancient families in the North.

There are a few welcome indications of the domestic manners of our forefathers. Thus, a grant of a hostilage in Stirling presents us with a fair picture of a lodging of the better sort in the fourteenth century—a hall for meals, with tables and trestles and other furniture; a spence with a buttery; one or more chambers for sleeping; a kitchen, and a stable capable of receiving thirty horses. They burned candles of white tallow, which were commonly called Paris candles. They used straw apparently for bedding, and the hall and bed-chamber were strewed with rushes.¹ But much more minute and curious illustrations of the manner of living will be found in the succeeding part.

The chartulary is peculiarly rich in notices of the Culdees. At Abernethy a convent of them existed, though, perhaps, in little more but in name, to the end of the reign of William the Lion, when they seem to have expired, and there is no trace of their rights or claims having been transferred to St. Andrews.² The chapter of Brechin at first consisted entirely of those Columbites. The successive Bishops speak of them with affection as “Keledei nostri.” Towards the end of William’s reign, we find an infusion of other clerks in the chapter; the Prior of the convent of Culdees however being still the President.³ In 1248, the last year of the reign of Alexander II., the Culdees have disappeared altogether, and the affairs of the Cathedral are managed in the ordinary modern form, by the Dean and Chapter.⁴

antiquary. The little island of the Esk, on which abuts the bridge of Montrose, once contained a church which has now disappeared, though its cemetery remains, and gave its name to a surrounding parish, still remembered as Inchbrayock. The origin of the name is found in these charters, where we meet, in the reign of Robert the Bruce, with the parson of the parish church, styled rector of the church of St. Braoch.¹

The church of Inverkeler is called in a charter of King William, the church of St. Macconoc of Inverkeler. It has been suggested that the first syllable was probably a Celtic prefix equivalent to "saint," and that the church was dedicated to St. Canech or Kenny, the contemporary of St. Columba, who visited him at Hy, and the same person who gives name to Kilkenny. He is commemorated in the calendar of the Scotch Church on the 11th of October.

When we consider the long and united efforts required in the early state of the arts for throwing a bridge over any considerable river, the early occurrence of bridges may be well admitted as one of the best tests of civilization and national prosperity. The bridge over the North water has already been mentioned. We find a bridge existing over the Esk at Brechin, and the land of Drumsleid appropriated for its support, in the early part of the 13th century.² In that age, we had a bridge over the Tay at Perth; bridges over the Esks at Brechin and Marykirk; a bridge over the Dee at Kincardine O'Neill, probably another at Durris, one near Aberdeen, and one at the mouth of Glenmuick; even a bridge over the rapid Spey at Orkill. If we reflect how few of these survived the middle of the 14th century, and how long it was, and by what painful efforts, before they could be replaced in later times, we may form some idea of the great progress in civilization which Scotland had made during the reign of William, and the peaceful times of the two Alexanders. We do not know much of the intellectual state of the population in that age, but regarding it only in a material point of view, it may safely be affirmed that Scotland, at the death of King Alexander III., was more civilized and more prosperous than at any period of her existence, down to the time when she ceased to be a separate kingdom in 1707.

Of the materials used for the present work, the two volumes generally known as the “Registrum Vetus,” and the “Registrum Recentius” of Arbroath, have been long familiar to Scotch antiquaries. They formed part of the collection of Sir James Balfour, and are both now preserved in the Advocates’ Library at Edinburgh. The former is a small folio or large octavo REGISTRUM VETUS. volume of vellum, of 138 numbered leaves.¹ The part of this volume which may be considered as the ancient digested and arranged record of the Abbey Charters, to which a “Tabula” (occurring at folio 34) corresponds, begins at folio 38, and ends at folio 112; that portion has rubricated numerals, as well as red titles to the charters. A not less ancient portion, as regards the handwriting, and which may be viewed as an ancient supplement, extends from folio 10 to folio 33, and the remainder of what may now be properly called the “Registrum Vetus,” includes from folio 112 to folio 129. The last two portions have red titles, but no numbers prefixed to the charters. From the appearance of the manuscript and its contents, it must have been in progress of formation during the reign of Robert I., and whilst Bernard de Linton was abbot; but a few charters have been added in the reign of David II., and under the Abbacy of Geoffry.¹

REGISTRUM NIGRUM. The “Registrum Recentius,” as it has been hitherto styled, to distinguish it from the preceding, is a folio volume of parchment, originally consisting of 167 leaves numbered, but the numeration has been altered by a later hand (perhaps Balfour’s) to 163;² besides a table of contents, alphabetically arranged, occupying seven leaves. The volume is written in a plain hand, contemporary, and almost uniform throughout. The only ornaments are a rubricated title, and a few red initial letters in the prefixed table of contents. The latest dates are about 1502, and the writing is not of later date. From an entry in the Register about to be noticed, it appears that this volume was known in the Abbey by the name of the “Registrum Nigrum.”³

REGALITY REGISTER. The next Register of the Abbey writs, is that which formerly belonged to the Clerk of the Regality, now the property of the Burgh of Arbroath, to whom the Club and Subscribers are indebted for its use. It consists of three duodecimo volumes of parchment. The first contains a few early writs at the beginning, but the first 16 leaves seem to contain all that are as old as the reign of Robert I. It consists in all of 195 numbered leaves, written about 1500. The second volume begins with the appointment of George Hepburn, as Abbot, in 1503, and contains all the Abbey writs during the period of his office. The third volume is the register of James Beaton and David Beaton, successive Abbots, the former of whom was appointed in 1518, and the latter in 1524.¹ Some of the deficiencies of the Registrum Nigrum are supplied by the first volume of this Register, but the few charters of an early date recorded in it are all found in one or other of the older Registers.

² The leaves which originally stood 40 and 41, are wanting, and also the leaves first numbered 50 and 51. The latter hiatus is supplied by the Regality Register.

Such were the materials known to be available when the pre-ETHIE MS. sent work was undertaken. Before it had gone to press, however, there was discovered in a closet at Ethie, the fragments of a Register of Arbroath, of higher antiquity than any formerly known; and the Earl of Northesk, with great courtesy, immediately communicated them to the Editors. They consist of thirty-four leaves of vellum, of a small folio size, twenty-one of which contain the same charters recorded in the Registrum Vetus, and like it, they

of the Regality of Aberbrothock, upon that as well as other heritable jurisdictions being by Act of Parliament abolished, 1748." And on the back of the same fly-leaf is written, "Given to the town of Arbroath by the Honourable William Maule of Panmure, December 1822."

have rubricated titles, and red numerals, and the order and divisions of the work, down even to the numeration of the charters, exactly correspond in both. The handwriting of the Ethie MS.—a fine uniform square hand—is not later than the middle of the reign of Alexander III. There is not much reason to doubt that these are the fragments of an original Register from which the book now called Registrum Vetus is copied.¹ Of the remaining thirteen leaves, ten are written in various hands, all later than the part above mentioned, but not later than the beginning of the reign of David II. One of them is that of the writer of the body of the Registrum Vetus. These leaves also contain charters of Arbroath which are, with very few exceptions,² contained also in the Registrum Vetus.

The remaining part of these fragments, while it is by far the most interesting, is unfortunately the smallest. It consists of a leaf of an early taxation of Scotch benefices, and of two leaves of the two is copied from the other, it is not doubtful which is the original and which the copy. If the age of the handwriting be correctly stated above, it at once sets the question at rest; but the priority does not rest solely on that. A charter of inspezimus of Henry, Prior of St. Andrews, has contained in gremio the charter of a preceding Prior. It is found so recorded in the Ethie MS.; but the scribe of the Registrum Vetus has left out the confirmed charter, with a mere reference to its position as already recorded. It is manifest that the writer of the Ethie Manuscript has not copied that entry from the Registrum Vetus, and it would seem to follow, that the Registrum Vetus is copied from the Ethie MS.

of STATUTA CONCILLII SCOTICANI, which, imperfect as they are, serve to place that code of ancient ecclesiastical law upon a much better foundation than Lord Hailes, from the authorities known in his time, could assert for it.¹ These are written in double columns, with coloured initial letters, and in a hand not later than the reign of Alexander III. They support, in their shape and essentials, the version found in the Register of Aberdeen, while they supply some omissions, and furnish readings greatly more correct. The leaves upon which they are written have certainly formed part of a book of Record of the Abbey of Arbroath, and, to judge from the appearance of the vellum, of the same volume whose fragments contain the rubricated and numbered charters mentioned above.

Considering the Registrum Vetus as a record of the age of Abbot Bernard, that period has been adopted as the limit of the present volume, which will be found to embrace all the ancient matter of the Registrum Vetus, as well as all the documents contained in the other Registers mentioned, that are of dates earlier than the end of the reign of Robert I.

In arranging these materials for the press, it has been thought ORDER OF PRINTING. proper to preserve the integrity, and even the shape and order of the ancient Abbey Register, as it is found imperfectly in the Ethie MS., and more complete in the "Registrum Vetus." The body of that Register is divided into several heads, according to the reigns of the kings and the bishops whose charters are engrossed, and all these distinctions have been minutely followed and indicated in the present volume.¹

The part of the Registrum Vetus, which may be considered an ancient supplement to the original rubricated and numbered portion, is next printed, still preserving the order in which it stands in the original.² Next follow ecclesiastical valuations, and the ancient taxation of the benefices of Scotland, a very valuable document for ancient statistics, and some portions of which are not found in the other chartularies.³ The statutes of Robert I. form the last article here printed from the Registrum Vetus.⁴ After thus exhausting the whole ancient matter of the Registrum Vetus, the charters that were found to fall within its period, whether in the "Registrum Nigrum," or in the Regality Register, have been thrown together in chronological order.⁵ Four charters which had been omitted, and one evidently a formula, are subjoined to these.⁶

In printing these materials, while all the authorities were constantly in view, the shape of the oldest has invariably been preferred, and the later ones only used to supply deficiencies or correct errors.

The Tabula of the Registrum Vetus, with very little modifica-

¹ It must be had in mind that the limits of the reigns are only partially kept; several of the charters placed in King William's reign, belong to that of his successor, as Nos. 24, 25, &c.

tion, and an addition, of course, for the additional matter, has been made to stand for a table of contents, and of reference, both to the numbers of the charters as rubricated in the original MSS., and to the leaf on which each occurs: while for convenience of ready consultation, dates have here been affixed, either ascertained or approximated, to all the charters.¹

In the Appendix have been thrown such original charters connected with the Abbey and its possessions, and within the period embraced by this volume, as have come to the knowledge of the Editors. It is not to be doubted that many more of equal or greater interest remain unknown and neglected in the charter-rooms of Angus and the North; and one advantage of the second part of the Register being for some time delayed is, that further opportunities may be afforded for bringing these to light for illustrating the second volume.

The present volume will be regarded with great interest by the historian as well as the local antiquary. It points at the first settlement of many districts, and the earliest traces of civilization; some very interesting particulars of Church antiquities, and the various races from which our population draws its origin. It illustrates the descent and transmission of lands widely scattered over three counties, and the early history of some of the greatest and most interesting Scotch families. The succeeding one, whilst it traces down the descent of property, will give much more minute and interesting details of the habits and manners, and the whole social condition of the people of the country.

The buildings of the Abbey of Arbroath, begun in 1178, brought near to their completion at the time of the dedication of its church in 1233, through the decay of so many centuries, in spite of violence and long neglect, and barbarous modern repairs, still afford a few specimens of good Norman architecture, and parts of several later styles. In the middle of last century, Dr. Johnson said "he should scarcely have regretted his journey" to Scotland, "had it afforded nothing more than the sight of Aberbrothick." The taste for church architecture had not then revived among us; and Johnson's was only an impression which would have been produced by the associations of any ancient ecclesiastical structure. The present state of the ruins, and of the few remaining monuments of Arbroath, some plates of which accompany the present volume, will be more particularly illustrated in the following one.
